TRANSLATIONS

We only work with the most experienced, and professional translators and proofreaders, each a native speaker and specialist in a particular subject. However technical or specialised your material, you can be confident that every detail and nuance will be preserved.

How much will my translation cost?

We calculate our rates according to the number of words in the source text and the subject matter. This means you know exactly how much your translation will cost before work is started. All rates quoted are per 1000 source words.

Do you have a minimum charge?

Yes we do, our minimum charge is for shorter documents.

Proofreading

This is the task of comparing a translation with the original text, in order to ensure that there are no mistakes, misunderstandings, or ambiguities. Our proofreaders also consider the style and vocabulary of the translation, and make constructive suggestions to improve the syntax and clarity of the text. We strongly recommend a proofreading stage for any material destined for publication - just as you would expect with any English text being printed.

How much does proofreading cost?

Proofreading is charged at an hourly rate, according to the language and subject involved. Assuming the text has been written or translated by a suitably qualified professional, we recommend that you allow one hour of proofreading per 1000 source words.

Our price lists can be used as a general guide; each project is considered individually and we confirm all costs in writing.
